Parcel Post Is Operated On Unit System With 8 Zones

Any One Can Learn Postage Rates by Figuring Out Distance From Postoffice.

Country Is Mapped Out With 3,500 Units---Government Sells Guides Cheaply.

BEGINNING New Year's day at 6 a. m. the new parcel post law permits any inhabitant of the United States to send through the mail merchandise of all descriptions, provided it does not weigh more than eleven pounds and is not more than six feet in combined length and girth. One point the postmaster general wishes emphasized and that is that all packages have to be taken to the postoffice by the sender, and this doesn't mean the numbered substations ordinarily found in drug stores, but the regular postoffice stations.

The packages will be delivered at their destination in wagons, the deliveries being as regular as the present letter service.

At present the number of men in the postal service has not been increased. Such a step is considered unnecessary at present. The postoffice department has been working overtime since last July, when congress passed the law, preparing for the inauguration of the new service. Twenty thousand of the most delicate and intricate scales have been ordered for delivery before Jan 1.

A most elaborate system of maps has been completed, inaugurating a zone system. There are eight different zones. Upon the maps are depicted various units in each zone. Every town is situated in a numbered unit, shown upon the map. The first zone is any distance within fifty miles. The second zone is a greater distance, and so on until the last zone, which takes in Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands, but not the Philippines.

For instance, the map with its numbered units printed on it shows that New York city is in unit 717, which, of course, is in the first zone. Each locality makes its own first zone, so it was necessary for the postoffice department to have printed separate maps for each locality. Suppose you are in unit 717 in the first zone and you want to send a package to Buffalo, which is approximately in unit 1,162, which is in the second zone. You take the package to the postoffice, and the postoffice clerk will place it on the newly constructed scales first designating on the scales that the package is to go to the second zone. When it is weighed the scale will give exactly the amount necessary to carry the package to its destination.

The first zone of fifty miles includes what is called the local zone. The maximum charge for the local zone is 5 cents for the first pound and 1 cent for each additional pound.

After that there is a graduated increase, the second zone having a radius of 150 miles, the third 300 miles, etc., until the eighth zone which includes every town over 1,800 miles. Separate provision is made for all packages that weigh four ounces or less. Like the present system of fourth class matter, there will be a flat rate of a cent an ounce. If a package weighs over four ounces it goes under the pound rate.

Every postmaster and postoffice clerk handling parcel post has a map and a guidebook which holds the key to the numbered units on the map. If you want to send a package to Buffalo his guidebook will show him which unit Buffalo is in, and then the map will designate the zone. All he has to do is to mark his scale with the zone indicator and the machine will show the amount of postage.

The postoffice department has issued a guide book and map that can be purchased for 75 cents. There is also an insurance against loss of all packages not over $50.

Among the things that will not be accepted for delivery are intoxicants, explosives, inflammable liquids, live or dead animals, firearms, disease germs, books or printed matter.

A special series of stamps has been engraved for the service.

The greatest advantage of the parcel post is to the farmer who wants to sell his products direct to the consumer. A postal card for a dozen or more fresh eggs can be sent on one day and the eggs received the next. All kinds of produce will be acceptable. Eggs can be packed separately in cotton and placed in corrugated pasteboard boxes so they can be shipped with entire safety. All packages containing eggs must be marked "eggs."

All fragile articles such as millinery, toys, musical instruments, glassware, etc., must be marked "fragile."

It is expected that the parcel post will hurt the express companies' business, particularly in short deliveries, on account of the cheap rates of the parcel post. The suburban poultry and produce markets will be accessible to thousands of town buyers.

The parcel post stamps measure 1 by 1½ inches between perforated lines. The color is red for all denominations. In a curved panel across the top, supported by a paneled perpendicular column at each end.

Triangular ornaments occupy both upper corners. The denomination in large numerals is in each lower corner, with the title of the subject and the word "cents" or "dollars" between.

The designs on the several denominations are as follows:

1 cent—Postoffice clerk
2 cents—City carrier
3 cents—Railway postal clerk
4 cents—Rural carrier
5 cents—Mail train
10 cents—Steamship and mail tender.
15 cents—Automobile service
20 cents—Aeroplane carrying mail
25 cents—Manufacturing
50 cents—Dairying
75 cents—Harvesting
$1—Fruit growing

TYPICAL DIAGRAM INDICATING PARCEL POST ZONES FROM CHICAGO AND SHOWING HOW TO COMPUTE POSTAGE ON PACKAGES.

This map, made with Chicago as a base, shows how the zone system will be used in arranging rates for the parcel post service which will be inaugurated Jan 1

Establishing zones by drawing circles of different diameters, with each postoffice as a center would mean an impracticable amount of figuring Instead of using townships and counties as units or starting points it was decided to divide the whole country into blocks or units each block being half a degree in latitude in north south extension and half a degree of longitude east and west There are 500 of these units in the country

An example of how to get the first zone is as follows:

Find the center of the unit in which your postoffice is located Draw a circle of fifty miles radius around that center Every unit which lies wholly within that circle or more than half of which is within that circle is included in the first zone from any postoffice, and the postage rate is 5 cents for the first pound and 3 cents for each additional pound

The second zone is determined by drawing with the same center a circle of 150 miles radius Every unit which lies within it, but outside of the first zone, is in the second zone, and the rate is 6 cents for the first pound and 4 cents for each additional pound

The method by which the second zone is determined is used for all other zones their radii and rate of postage for the first and additional pounds respectively being as follows. Third zone, 300 miles 7 cents 5 cents fourth zone 600 miles, 8 cents 6 cents, fifth zone, 1 000 miles, 9 cents, 7 cents, sixth zone, 1,400 miles 10 cents 9 cents seventh zone 1 800 miles 11 cents, 10 cents, eighth zone and all territory farther away, including the Philippines and island possessions 12 cents flat

For the purpose of carrying this law into effect the United States is divided into zones, with different rates of postage applicable to each, as follows:

Weight.	1st zone. Local rate.	1st zone. Zone rate, 50 miles.	2nd zone, 50 to 150 miles. Rate	3d zone 150 to 300 miles Rate	4th zone, 300 to 600 miles. Rate	5th zone, 600 to 1 000 miles. Rate	6th zone 1,000 to 1 400 miles Rate	7th zone 1 400 to 1 800 miles Rate	8th zone all over 1,800 miles. Rate

THE POLAR DASH A PLEASURE TRIP

But Amundsen's Story Does Not Bear Out Statement.

SCOTT'S RELIEF SHIP OFF.

Englishmen, Beaten to Antarctic Prize by Sturdy Norsemen, Will Be Brought Back Soon, and Amundsen Tells of His Work South.

When Captain Scott's antarctic ship, the Terra Nova, left Christchurch, New Zealand, on Dec 13 last it was with the calculation of reaching Scott's base, at Cape Evans in the second week in January. She will relieve the expedition which has been engaged in an attempt to reach the south pole. Captain Scott will doubtless bring back some absorbing stories of peril and hardship, though Captain Amundsen, the discoverer of the pole, declares his historical dash to the goal to have been a pleasure trip. "We all enjoyed it," he said, "but the world knows it was no picnic."

Captain Amundsen will at the termination of his lecture tour, which will include six months in the United States, turn again to the strenuous work he calls "business life." "The Fram," he said will then be at San Francisco. Perhaps it will be able to add to its varied experiences by going through the Panama canal.

"We start from San Francisco in June, 1914, and hope to get into the ice at the Bering strait in September. Then we shall drift perhaps for four, perhaps for five, years. It depends very much on how far we get into the ice the first year. And we shall emerge when the time comes between Spitsbergen and Greenland.

No Aeroplane, No Wireless.

"There is an immense lot of work to be done in these latitudes—purely scientific work—in sounding and dredging and meteorological observations. I do not propose to take an aeroplane with me," said the captain decidedly, "and, though I have been offered the gift of a wireless installation for the Fram, that also I have declined. I don't care for it. It is very much better to be without news when you cannot be where the news comes from. We are always more contented if we get no news."

The difficulty is to get Captain Amundsen to talk about his own attainments. He will not admit that the wonderful feat of reaching the south pole calls for extravagant praise or enthusiasm. "I never had any doubt but that we should reach the pole," he said recently, "even when we encountered the great blizzard which we had to fight for three days.

"I attribute my success to the men and the equipment. They were both perfect, and as part of the equipment I would put first the dogs. The dogs were splendid. We could never have attained the pole but for our brave dogs. We started on the journey to the pole with fifty-two. We brought back to the Fram only eleven.

Regrets Slaughter of Dogs.

"What touched us most keenly on the whole journey," said Captain Amundsen, "was the unavoidable slaughter of the animals which had shared our dangers and had done such splendid work. The killing of them went to the heart of every one but in polar explorations such things must be. It was a regrettable necessity and the only thing that soothed our feelings was that the survivors enjoyed eating their comrades quite as much as we did.

"Crossing the crevasses skis were of the greatest assistance to us. We should never have got forward so well if we had not all been good ski runners. I had never driven a dog team before, but of course Johannssen and Hansen were experts at it, and we all very soon got into the knack of it."

"You are equally familiar with arctic and antarctic exploration. What are the main differences between them and the problems they present?" he was asked.

"They are entirely different," said Captain Amundsen. "In the arctic there is only drifting ice, no solid land; at the south it is ascending to the high plateau that is the chief difficulty. I should say without hesitation that traveling in the far north is much more difficult than in the far south for that reason alone.

Always Enough to Eat.

"I had no doubt that the plateau was an ideal place for sledging when I first saw it, and so it proved to be. Apart from the blizzard the weather was quite good. Only during those three days did we suffer any hardship. At other times it was not particularly cold.

"And we always had enough—if one could ever have enough in that climate—to eat. In fact, we actually increased our rations after we left the pole, because we knew we should make more rapid progress on the way back and we had many depots on which to depend.

"There is very little doubt, I think, that King Edward's Land is connected with the mainland. We saw land in places which were then a blank on the map and the geological specimens from the plateau are identical with those from King Edward's Land. I believe there is land from there right up to the pole and beyond."

Inanimate Salesmen.

"Are those good graphophones?"

"The goods speak for themselves."

"That's so. Well, wind one up and let's see if it can effect a sale."—Louisville Courier Journal

Quite Likely.

"What do you know of old dog Tray?"

"Judging by the name, he must have beat the deuce."—New York Press.

Coercion.

"How old are you, Ethel?"

"I'm five, an' mamma says if I'm good an' eats lots o' oatmeal I'll be six next birthday."—Life.

Qualified to Instruct.

Mr Green—What a lot I seem to have learned tonight! How I have benefited by this conversation with you my dear Miss Roberts! Somehow your intellect seems to appeal to mine. Are you a literary lady? Miss Roberts—No; I am a teacher in an infant school!

REVIEW OF EVENTS AT COUNTY SEAT

Interesting Correspondence from Our Doylestown Representative.

Doylestown, December 24.

Everything is exceptionally quiet at the county seat just at this time largely owing to the holiday season. Never before has there been so many Christmas trees sold here and all of the shopkeepers report an unusually good sale of Christmas goods

Last Friday the public schools held their Christmas celebration and all of the rooms were handsomely decorated. Next year they will have their large assembly room and it is intended to have a larger and much more elaborate function

All of our churches and Sunday schools will celebrate Christmas and as there are not as many nights this week as there are Sunday schools there will be two celebrations on the same night much to the disgust of the youngster who belongs to at least three Sunday schools and who will have to miss one tree and its gifts

George Fisher, of Rockhill township, has returned to Kissimmee Osceola county Florida George did not care to make the trip but yielded to the persuasions of Sheriff Prevatt who came to the county seat with a persuader in the shape of a requisition from the Governor of Florida requesting the Governor of Pennsylvania to return George to his former home George will have to explain why he conspired to defraud the State of Florida of money and other valuables according to the terms of the requisition and as he says that he can successfully do this, he may be back in Rockhill early in the new year—and then again he may not, for Sheriff Prevatt opines that the new year will see George working in a turpentine camp, for they do not have penitentiaries in Florida but farm their convicts out to the highest bidder, where by the state realizes an income of about thirty dollars a month for each convict Of course they are under guard usually one guard to each convict but even at that the State treasury is enriched as a result of this system and the taxpayers do not have to pay the board of the criminal class as we have to do here

Among the social events of the holiday season was the marriage of one of the fair daughters of the county seat, Miss Mary James Metlar, to Dr. William A. Roberts, of Newtown. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Anna I Metlar, and Emlyn Jones, of Quakertown was best man, and Walter Cranston L Brooke Roberts and N Joseph Roberts were the ushers The ceremony was performed by the Rev William J Steckel, of Doylestown Presbyterian church Over a hundred guests were present and saw the happy pair make their start on their matrimonial voyage

Last Wednesday afternoon Judge Ryan had before him one of those unfortunate cases which are a Chinese puzzle when they came up to be disposed of. It was an unusual case for Bucks county Court, a mother with three illegitimate children, one of them colored of whom she was unable to take the proper care The children were Walter, aged twelve years, May, aged seven years, and Stella aged four years The mother of these three is Emma Rutherford and she has a sister Anna who has two boys who lived at the same house at Rushland the latter two were not in Court However These two families and an aged grandmother have been living on mush and whatever else they could occasionally obtain and the house was in a terrible condition Of course there was but one thing for Judge Ryan to do under the circumstances and that was to commit the children to the County Home where they will remain for a time until the Children's Aid Society can arrange for proper homes for them When the Judge made this announcement there was a scene in the court room All three children and the mother were crying and announcing their determination to return to Rushland and not to the County Home Probation Officer Mrs Charles R Nightingale, William R Beck, agent of the Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, the prosecutor and tip-stave James Hellings, who usually takes care of all the members of the feminine persuasion who attend Court and who is quite a ladies' man at all times, reasoned with the mother and children but rather increased than diminished the storm of protest Mr. Hellings failing in moral suasion attempted to take seven-year-old May out of the court room, but the kidlet was too much for Jim and he had to give up that method Finally they became completely worn out with their efforts and then the mother gave in and recognized the inevitable and the whole party started for the Hotel Pollock where they will be kept for awhile at the County's expense It was hard to part a mother and her children but what else could the Judge do, they would have starved and frozen this winter if he had not sent them to the only available place in the county

The Rapid Transit Company has gotten ahead of the county seat citizens who started proceedings against them some time ago to compel them to stop charging toll over the Doylestown and Willow Grove turnpike Their road bed was one of the worst in the county and would certainly have been condemned but the Rapid Transit people immediately got busy and started repairs to the worst parts of the road bed Just how long the repairing will continue is doubtful but as the Rapid Transit Company want to sell out their turnpike franchise together with what is alleged to be a macadamized road bed to the State next spring it is probable that enough will be done to prevent the cessation of toll charging It is a very bad piece of road yet

Camp 631 P O S of A have just about completed their new hall on Hamilton street and will open it with a moving picture show on New Years eve It is one of the finest in the county and one of the few that really complies with the law It is on the first floor with plenty of windows near the ground thus insuring the audience from any danger by fire In the second story will be a splendid lodge room so arranged that all of the latest degree work electric effects can be easily given

From present indications the County Commissioners will not bring suit against the Bristol Trolley Company The trolley company has had one test of the Commissioners nerve and came out loser so now they are getting ready to settle and it is more than probable that before the New Year the Commissioners will be paid the balance due the county, a very good year's work for the taxpayers Let us all hope that they will not become weary with well doing and will help the county treasury out even more in 1913 than they have in 1912, then, if there are no extraordinary expenses we may look for a slight reduction in taxes. Probably if all of the taxes were collected that ought to be the county treasury would be much better off but that of course is the County Treasurer's business and not that of the Commissioners. Still they might jog up the County Treasurer a little and let him get busy with the help of his handsome deputy Colonel Murphy, whose genial smile should be sufficient to coax the dollars out of the hardest hearted delinquent taxpayer especially if she should happen to be a "she" for the Colonel is quite popular with all the ladies at the county seat.

Rope or Rifle

The first legal execution by shooting to be carried out by civil authorities in America was at Salt Lake City in 1861 when William Cockroft convicted of murder in the first degree chose to be shot rather than hanged or beheaded Under the laws of the territory of Utah a condemned man was permitted to select either of the three methods of his taking off and when Utah became a state the choice was restricted to shooting or hanging Of the executions in Utah in the last century only one man, a wife murderer has chosen the noose Utah was long the only American state that permitted an assassin any choice as to his means of exit from the world but a few years ago Nevada passed a law giving a condemned man the option of the rope or the rifle —Baltimore News

Sir Boyle Roche's Bulls

Sir Boyle Roche earned the distinction of being the father of Irish bulls Here are one or two of his remarks "Why," he once said, "should we beggar ourselves to benefit posterity What has posterity done for us?" adding, "By posterity I mean those who come after us"

At a political meeting he remarked that he would "not rest satisfied until the rocky mountains of Ireland became cultivated valleys," and on another occasion, "All along the untrod den paths of the future I can see the footprints of an unseen hand" His most popular and best quoted bull and one which must always be allied with his name is, "A man could not be in two places at the same time unless he were a bird."

Drinking of Healths.

The drinking of healths in wine or liquor or other kinds originated in Britain at the time of the rule of the Danes, before Alfred the Great finally succeeded in driving them from the land Owing to the assassination of Englishmen by the Danes, it became a custom to enter into compacts for the mutual preservation of health and security These compacts were usually pledged in wine and hence the custom of drinking healths —London Standard

CHILDREN'S KIDNEYS

No Bristol Mother Should Neglect the Little One's Health.

Oftentimes weak kidneys cause great annoyance and embarrassment to children Inability to control the kidney secretions, at night or while at play, is attributed to carelessness and too frequently the child is punished. Parents having children troubled with kidney weakness would do well to treat the kidneys with a tested and proven kidney remedy If there is pain in the back, discolored urine, irregular urination, headaches dizzy spells or a tired, worn-out feeling, try Doan's Kidney Pills at once A remedy that has been used in kidney troubles for over 50 years and has been recommened by thousands Proof of merit in a Bristol citizen's statement.

W. A. Michener, 526 Swain St Bristol, Pa., says. "My children suffered from kidney weakness and received no benefit until Doan's Kidney Pills were used We got this remedy at Erthal's Drug Store and it brought relief in a short time The action of the kidneys was regulated and there was a great improvement in the children's health"

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn Co, Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Too Obliging

When a Sixth avenue elevated train reached the Twenty third street station an elderly and poorly dressed woman passed and walked slowly toward the exit She had reached the platform and was about to step off when a man noticed that she had left a paper parcel "Hey! Hey! You forgot something!" I shouted, but the woman never turned about He jumped off the train and reached the woman's side just as the signal changed and the train moved on "Much obliged but that isn't mine," said the woman A sickly smile overspread the man's face as he said to the people who had witnessed the refusal of the parcel, "She's right it belongs to me and seeing that some of the witnesses were incredulous he said that the parcel contained a child's rubber coat, proving it by opening the parcel He then joined in the laugh on himself —New York Tribune

Picking Tea Leaves.

'Tea leaf picking' was a Camberwell industry in the early nineteenth century On May 13, 1833 when two boys were charged with gambling on Sunday one of them explained that he got the 2 shillings found upon him, "not by gambling, your worship, but by picking tea leaves" 'The tea plant does not happen to grow in this country, my lad," replied the magistrate; therefore you are adding a falsehood to the offense for which you were brought here, and that offense is always sure to lead to crimes of more magnitude"

But the boy explained "I am employed by a cowkeeper at Camberwell who sends me into the fields to gather sloe leaves and black and white thorn leaves and he pays me so much a pound for all I pick" And the police traced the connection between that cowkeeper and city tea dealers —London Opinion

Historical Accuracy.

Perish the thought that the novelist or playwright should be tied down to historical accuracy! Lady Dorothy Nevile quotes an amusing correspondence between Bulwer Lytton and her brother

My Dear Walpole—Here I am at Bath —bored to death I am thinking of writing a play about your great ancestor, Sir Robert Had he not a sister Lucy, and did she not marry a Jacobite?

My brother promptly replied:

My Dear Lytton—I care little for my family I still less for Sir Robert, but I know that he never had a sister Lucy so she could not have married a Jacobite

However this mattered little to Lord Lytton for his answer ran

My Dear Walpole—You are too late! Sir Robert had a sister Lucy, and she did marry a Jacobite

So in defiance of history, the play "Walpole" came to be written

Wellington's Wrist of Steel.

The Duke of Wellington had only one vanity his wrist was like steel. Now, when he was given the sword of state to carry it was his infinite delight that he was able to carry it upright. All his predecessors had had to slope it toward the shoulder He would go down to posterity he resolved, glorified by the power of his wrist In vain Sir Thomas Lawrence pointed out that as a matter of art it would never do, that the sight of a man perpetually carrying a sword from his wrist would fatigue those who looked at his picture The duke insisted upon having his way Lawrence did contrive to smuggle in a cushion upon which the duke seems to rest his elbow but close examination shows that arm and cushion do not meet.—London Sketch

Liszt and His Cigars.

Liszt the composer, is said to have acquired the habit of smoking as a result of a misunderstanding with the Jesuit customs authorities He was not accustomed to smoke but one cigar a day and on a journey to Rome had one hundred for each day of his stay in the Holy City packed in his trunk. On being asked at the frontier if he had any cigars he forgot to declare he absentminded, of course When the trunk was shook his head When the trunk was examined fully a hundred cigars were found. They were confiscated and the owner fined 500 francs As a result of this experience Liszt made a vow never to smoke again

Two Irishmen occupied the same house one of them living on the first floor and the other upstairs Late one evening Pat hearing a commotion in the hall went out to see what the trouble was He found his friend had fallen down stairs "Did ye fall down Michael?" he asked

"Of did," said Mike. "I fell down but I was coming down anyway

Rain From a Cloudless Sky

When rain falls from a cloudless sky it is generally believed that the moisture has been brought by the wind at a great elevation. In the south Atlantic it has been known to rain for more than an hour while the sky was entirely free from clouds In the island of Mauritius it is not at all uncommon for rain to come from a cloudless heaven Slight showers fall during the evening when the stars are shining brightly It is thought by some that these showers are the result of particles of ice formed in the higher region of the atmosphere melting and falling Others attribute it to currents of warm and cold air traveling in opposite directions, with the result that the latter condenses some of the moisture in the former and causes it to fall in the form of rain

Where the Strain Was

Among the ancestors of Wendell Phillips were several Puritan clergymen Perhaps it was a push of heredity which made him at five years of age a preacher His congregation was composed of circles of chairs, arranged in his father's parlor, while a taller chair, with a Bible on it, served him for a pulpit. He would harangue these wooden auditors by the hour

"Wendell," said his father to him one day, "don't you get tired of this?"

"No, papa," wittily replied the boy preacher, "I don't get tired, but it is rather hard on the chairs"

Superstitious.

"He was the most superstitious card player I ever saw"

"Yes, and he got so superstitious here lately that he doesn't play cards at all now"

"Is that so?"

"Yes He suddenly discovered that there are thirteen cards in each suit"

The old English words "right" and "left" have come into more and more general use, and that, too, with the help of other than English people For some years the words of command have been changed on the ships of a German transatlantic line Instead of ordering a change of course by the old terms, "starboard" or "port," as the case might require, the same orders are now given by the shorter word "right" or "left." The change was made in the German navy at an earlier day.

It was not long ago that the English word "larboard" was used where we now use "port." There is no difficulty in seeing that two such words as "starboard" and "larboard" were unfit for their use, as they sounded too nearly alike They were also too long There is need of short, sharp words which are easily distinguished Often there is no time to correct an error, and a mistake is fatal "Right" and "left" are short and sharp enough. If they differed more in sound they would serve all the better —St. Louis Republic

Fifty years ago the "conservatives" championed a view of the constitution which perpetuated chattel slavery for black men, the corresponding "conservatives" of today champion an interpretation of the constitution which perpetuates industrial slavery for white women and children.—Theodore Roosevelt at the Progressive Conference

The conditions of tenement and sweatshop workers, described to the New York Factory Investigation Commission and to Congress, are truly industrial slavery as they are not personal liberty The Hungarian women who recently engaged as steel makers to break a strike of men workers were driven by the hard lash of necessity

Cause of Mail Deficit.

Tunkhannock Republican

For the first time in two years the mail service showed a temporary deficit during the political campaign This was doubtless due to the amount of matter franked by congressmen, many of whom sent out speeches for the sole purpose of influencing political issues The postal service handled during the past year 310,245,000 pieces of franked mail, weighing 61,377,000 pounds. It was carried as first class mail, and had postage been paid it would have yielded the Government not far from $90,000 000 Postmaster General Hitchcock says that had it not been for the cost of carrying franked political mail the postal account would have been a surplus of over $1 000,000 instead of a deficit of $1,787 000, and this notwithstanding the fact that the compensation of postal employees was increased during the year by an aggregate of $6,000,000

MEN AND MONEY

In dollars how much is a man worth to his world?

Of course it depends

In slavery days an ablebodied colored man would bring from $1,000 to $2,500 on the auction block

Young Greeks brought to this country sell themselves in peonage, so it is claimed, for something like $500 for a period of five years

I said to my friend, a prosperous lawyer, "How much are you worth?"

"One hundred thousand dollars," he replied. When I expressed surprise he said, "I earn 5 per cent on $100,000 —$5 000 a year—and therefore I am worth that much"

Experts have figured the cash value of a man.

According to Dr Parr, the net value to Great Britain of the average citizen age twenty five years is $1,000 He get his estimate by subtracting the man's keep from his probable future earnings

Men are more valuable here

American men are valuable because of their better earning opportunity In comparison with the Englishman the figure is surprising Professor Lewing Fisher estimates the average American at the age of twenty to be worth $4 000 That is to say he is worth that much in cold cash to the United States

People are a country's most valuable asset but nevertheless they are set down as figured in the national balance sheet.

Why?

Probably because our laws and legislation have been almost entirely directed to property interests Our economics know nothing but dollars as represented in rent and personal property

That is why you can stir the country to agitation concerning the conservation of our resources—timber and mines and water power—while propositions concerning pure food and legislation concerning labor and employers' liability laws with a slow response

Why so jealous of the destruction of timber and coal and so careless of the destruction of men and women and children?

Because dollars are dear in the view of legislators and flesh and blood are cheap

But, glory be!

The times are full of significance, and our statesmen are coming to understand that, motives of humanity aside, men are more valuable than

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By EDWIN A. NYE.

PAT AND HIS KIDS.

Now listen

A bill has been introduced into the Hungarian parliament to pay men wages according to the size of their families!

Fact!

The measure under discussion divides all government employees including railroad men, into two general classes, known as the upper and lower The upper class will get an allowance of 400 per year for one child, $80 for two children and $125 for three or more The lower class will get one-half these amounts.

Which is paying men according to their needs—a new principle

Under our present economic system men are paid according to the value of their work, but—

One employee is unmarried and has no one but himself to support This bachelor may spend all his money on himself, and everybody says that is all right. Another has a wife and six children and his wages are the same as the bachelor's. He finds his wages will not decently support and educate his family And everybody says he is merely "unfortunate"

It is the way of the world

But the Hungarian parliament says the system is wrong and entails suffering It says the best asset of a government is its people and especially its growing children, citizens of the future

Owning its own railroads, it is proposed the government shall give the married railroad employee and his kids a little of the advantage of the unpatriotic and selfish bachelor, who provides no children for citizenship And so of all government employes

Should the bill become a law Pat with his six children would get as much pay as Maurice the well dressed office man who has no children

That would even up things.

However—

Pat should not get his hopes set upon such a Christian like arrangement during his lifetime The bill has not passed the parliament yet. And if it should it is a long step from Hungary to this country

Now—

Of course if we were running this world according to the way the Nazarene would run it were he here, we would do the very thing proposed in Hungary We would pay men according to their needs, and we would not let women and children suffer because the husband and father lacked the brains or the luck to earn good wages.

But we are not running it that way.

SADIE'S WISH

Here are two pictures

Inside the Hotel Vanderbilt, New York eight women, stylishly gowned, and eight long haired lap dogs sat together at an elaborate luncheon.

The women were rich women. The dogs were of long lineage and blue blood pedigreed imported prize winners and the luncheon was given in the special honor of a Chinese spaniel This canine was champion of his class

The Chinese room of the hotel was not Chinese enough to suit the fastidious taste of the dog owners so decorations were hired and money lavishly spent to make the room resemble a royal palace in Peking Chinese gods grinned from pedestals, and Chinese screens and tapestries were every where in evidence

A Chinese chef was hired and prepared a special menu for the occasion The women ate and fed the dogs, each sitting beside its owner and devouring the morsels offered by dainty fingers

That is one picture

Outside the hotel attracted by the laughter and banter of the women and the yaps of the toy spaniels, four wide eyed east side youngsters in tattered garments peeked through an open window on the alley side

These mothers doubtless were too busy with their washtubs to know how far away the kids had strayed Should they turn up by supper it would suffice

The grimy youngsters three boys and a girl paused when they heard the strange revels of the aristocratic spaniels

"What's them dogs doin?" asked one "Thought they didn't let dogs in them swell joints"

"Aw, we can find out," answered another, placing a soap box he was taking home for kindling under the window Sadie, the only girl of the group clambered on it, by invitation, and gasped at what she saw

"Oh, Mikey, they's a feedin' dogs in there—swell women is. Givin' 'em all sorts of classy stuff too And one dog's got his feet in a woman's plate and she don't care" Each child had a look in and then they started homeward and Sadie said, a little wistfully, "Some dogs don't get very much, but I wisht I was one of them dogs"

Look on this picture and then on that.

The pictures themselves are sufficient excuse—if they set you to thinking

Won Fire Department Badge

Another highly prized gift which Miss Gould received about this time was a solid gold badge of the New York fire department This was for what she had done when the Windsor hotel was burned Miss Gould then turned her home into a hospital for the treatment of the injured and she herself worked side by side with the sufferers that for some time she was on the verge of nervous prostration

The Spanish American war left her the popular idol in America This enviable position had not a few drawbacks One of the greatest of these was that it made her the object of thousands and thousands of begging letters and circulars The application blanks for charity became so great that Miss Gould found it necessary to consider a plan to investigate appeals and systematize her charitable work

For this work Miss Gould was eminently fitted She had deliberately prepared herself for the work of handling her large fortune Shortly after the death of her father she had gone to the head of and taken a thorough course Further than that the Jay Gould estate had been safeguarded so that the charitable designs of Miss Gould would not be able to cut into it too deeply

The will of Jay Gould left his heirs bound to follow closely the advice of the executors of his estate The supervision by the executors over the affairs of the heirs extended even to matrimony The will provided that none of the children should marry without the unanimous consent and approval of the executors, on penalty of losing one half of his or her inheritance

Even now Miss Gould's marriage must have the sanction of the other executors This provision it will be remembered was framed to cut down the influence of Anna Gould, then the Countess de Castellane when she married Prince de Bagan

The wireless power was concentrated about fifty feet above sea level By means of the new instrument Professor Pierce got into communication with the Harvard Wireless club thirty five miles away and talked with several of the club members for a space covering fifteen minutes

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

Boys were skating yesterday on the canal basin.

We hope that the chap who wanted a "white" Christmas is satisfied.

The Christmas music will be repeated at St. Marks church on Sunday.

Miss Anna Tiedman has been seriously ill at her home in the township

Rev. W. T. Johnston and family spent Christmas with friends in Lindfield, Pa.

Miss Irene Percy, of Trenton, was the guest of Miss Violet Goslin over Sunday.

Harold Marhshall is now working for Samuel Turner, the Lafayette street grocer.

Mr and Mrs. Louis Dries and son, Samuel, spent Christmas with relatives in Trenton.

Burgess and Mrs. Henry Ancker spent Christmas with Miss Harriet Walmsley and family at Elkton, Md.

Miss Georgia Whyte, of Philadelphia, spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs William K. Fine.

J. W. Closson, of Hackensack, N. J., spent Christmas with his brother, John Smith, Bath street.

William Walmsley, of Bordenton, is spending the holidays with William Holt, of Otter street.

Mrs. Charles Darrah, of Newark, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Renk, Jefferson avenue.

The children in the various Sunday schools were made happy this week when the annual "treats" took place.

Mrs. Stanley Page, of Burlington, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend, Jefferson avenue, this week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Fabs, of West Philadelphia, spent Christmas with Mrs. Fabs' parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Bunting.

Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien, of New York, are spending the Christmas holidays with Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Brannigan.

Mrs. W. Allen Lorimer and children, of Chicopee, Mass., are spending the holidays with Mrs. Lorimer's parents Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Thornton, Bath street.

The iron work for the new borough water tower has arrived and placed on the ground upon which it is to be erected next to No. 2 hose house on Pond street.

Miss Florence Morris, the competent and popular chief operator at the Bristol station of the Bell Telephone Company, has been transferred to Burlington.

John H. LaRue and family of the township, and Mr and Mrs. James R. LaRue, of Bristol, spent Christmas with Dr and Mrs J. R. Osman, of Philadelphia, formerly of Bristol.

Mr and Mrs. John Buss, of Philadelphia, Miss Katherine Smith, of Frankford and James Clark, of Trenton spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs Adam Tiedman, of the township.

Work on the building of the sewers in Bristol, contrary to previous notice by the contractors, has been suspended for the winter. Mill, Radcliffe and Pond streets still remain to be dug up and the pipes placed.

On Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock, Bartolo Napoie and Anne Loppina, daughter of Michael and Francesca Loppina 1042 Chestnut street, were united in marriage at St. Ann's Roman Catholic church by Rev. Father Orlando.

Start the New Years right. Subscribe to the Gazette for some friend whom you think would like to know the news of this vicinity. One dollar a year, postage paid to any part of the United States. It is cheaper than writing a letter.

William Welker, the piano player at the Family Theatre, resigned his position last week and left with his family for California where he will be employed by Budd Doble, a relative formerly of Bristol, in the training of race horses.

Thomas Baines, Jr., and Miss Evelyn Campbell, both of Bristol, were married on Christmas Day by Rev. C. E. Burns, D. D., at two o'clock p. m. Harry Burkett was best man and Miss Edith Campbell was bridesmaid. Mr. and Mrs. Baines will reside at 1021 Elm street. The groom is an employee of the Adams Express Company.

Jesse Bromley, of Linden street, had a narrow escape from a serious accident with probably a broken limb on Saturday morning. He was on a ladder painting a house on Otter street, when the ladder slipped throwing him against the house and then to the ground, the ladder falling on him and pinning him to the ground. Fortunately no bones were broken.

A strange sight was witnessed at the postoffice the day before Christmas. Postmaster Minster whose time is usually spent managing two large farms, an ice plant, an ice cream factory a large milk route, and superintending the politics of the county, was noticed at the delivery window of the postoffice on Tuesday actually attending to the wants of the patrons of the office

The second of the series of monthly dances will be given for the benefit of the free book fund in St. Marks Hall on Tuesday evening, New Year's Eve. The committee in charge of these affairs consists of James F. Blanche, Francis J. Byers, Charles J. McGinley, Joseph P. Duffy, Richard J. Blanche and Peter A. Walde. It is expected that a large number will be in attendance.

Former State Treasurer William H. Berry delivered a superb address to an audience of two hundred men at the men's meeting at the Baptist church last Sunday afternoon. Rev. George Adams, D. D., of Philadelphia, will address the meeting next Sunday afternoon and the Baptist choir will render Christmas music. Dr. Adams has the reputation of being an exceptional pulpit orator.

The service in the Methodist church last Sunday consisted of a sermon and music, appropriate to the Christmas season. The opening service was in charge of Doron Green, with opening prayer by William Wilkinson. Pastor Rushton preached a very impressive sermon from Luke 2:7, "No place for them in the Inn." The Christmas service, "The Gift Supreme," was rendered in the evening by the members of the Sunday school, with Doron Green, superintendent, and James Guy, chorister, in charge. Miss Margaret Bunting was soloist. The singing was augmented by an orchestra.

Thomas Clare celebrated his 83rd birthday anniversary on Saturday. Mr Clare has resided in Bristol for over sixty years and recalls many interesting reminiscences of his early days in Bristol when coal shipping was the chief industry of the town. Mr Clare was watchman at the Mill street railroad crossing for 25 years and at the age of 70 was retired on pension by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company with annual passes over the road. He is spending the Christmas holidays with his son Henry Clare, in Jersey City. Mr. Clare is an interesting conversationalist and has a remarkable memory concerning life in the borough a half century ago.

AGED BRISTOLIAN DIED AT MIDNIGHT

Henry Weigand, Who Voted for Fremont, Died of Pneumonia.

Henry B. Weigand, in his 91st year, died at his boarding house, 502 Pond street, Bristol, at midnight last Thursday of pneumonia.

Mr. Weigand was a picturesque character. Born in Germany on April 27, 1822, he came to this country as a young man, imbued with the spirit of liberty. He affiliated with the Republican party at its birth, formerly having been a Whig. He voted for Fremont, the first Presidential candidate of the new-born Republican party, believing that the "Pathfinder" represented his ideals of political and human liberty, and thereafter voted for every Republican candidate for President until last November when he became an ardent supporter of the Progressive cause and voted for Theodore Roosevelt for the presidency.

Mr. Weigand was a veteran of the Civil War. He enlisted in the Union Army at President Lincoln's first call for troops under the command of Colonel Peter Lisle.

Last fall he raised the Roosevelt and Johnson banner in front of the Roosevelt Progressive League headquarters on Mill street, and was cheered by the gathered throng when he stepped out of the building and pulled the rope which swung the banner across the street.

Mr. Weigand came to Bristol with Thomas L. Leedom & Company, when that firm moved their carpet mill from Philadelphia to Bristol, and continued in employment with the firm until two or three days before his death. He was not married. The funeral was held Monday. Interment at Bristol cemetery.

Death of John Mahan.

John Mahan 78 years old, a native of Ireland, died at his home at Bloomsdale, Bristol township, early last Thursday morning of senile gangrene. The deceased was a well known resident of the township, where he had lived for many years, having been employed on the Landreth seed farm. He leaves a widow and four children, two sons and two daughters. The funeral was held on Monday. Interment in St. Marks cemetery.

Judge Staples Starts a Reform.

Judge Charles B. Staples, of Monroe county, who has presided over the Courts of Bucks county at many sessions, has started a reform of much interest to rural school districts. He demanded that proper provision be made for the comfort of pupils in the country districts, and instructed the supervisors of townships to improve roads and paths, and see that the children have good walks when snow comes.

Public Invited to This Meeting.

The Public Welfare Association, of Bristol, has secured as principal speaker for the proposed conference meeting of all the charitable agencies of the town, Frank D. Witherbee, Superintendent of Admissions at Girard College, Philadelphia.

Mr. Witherbee is actively interested in charitable and relief work in Philadelphia and will address the meeting on the best methods of organizing such work. The meeting will be held at the high school building on Friday evening, January 3. All who are interested in the subject, whether they be members of the Association or not, are cordially invited to attend.

Death of Mrs. Briggs.

Mrs Eliza Cheston Briggs, 87 years old, widow of the late Judge Amos Briggs, of Tullytown, died on Saturday morning at eight o'clock, at her home with her neice, Mrs. William B. Pryor, of Langhorne. Death was the result of a shock sustained by a fall down stairs recently at her home. The deceased, who was an aunt of Harry Headley, of Bristol, leaves four sisters, Mrs. Sarah Starkey, Mrs Benjamin Briggs, Mrs. Caroline H. White and Mrs. Louisa Starkey. Mrs. Briggs' first husband was the late John Cheston.

The funeral services were held on Tuesday. Interment in St. James grave yard, Bristol.

A Scotchman's Prayer

The following prayer was rendered by a Scotch minister at Caldon, Canada:

O Lord, we approach Thee this mornin' in the attitude o' prayer, and likewise o' complaint. When we cam' tae this lan' o' Canady we expeckit tae fin' a lan' flowin' wi' milk an' honey, but instead o' that we found a lan' peopled wi' ungodly Irish. O Lord, in Thy great mercy drive them tae the uttermost pairts o' Canady; mak' them hewers o' woods an' drawers o' watter; gie them nae emoluments; gie them nae place o' abode, ne'er make them magistrates, police men or rulers amang Thy people, but if Ye has any favors tae bestow, or any guid lan' tae gie awa', gie tae Thine ain, Thy peculiar people, the Scotch. Mak' them a' members o' Parliament, an' magistrates, an' rulers amang Thy people. But as for thae ungodly Irish, tak' them by the heels an' shake them ower the mouth o' hell, but dinna lat them fa' in, and the Glory shall be thine. Amen

Death of Former Mayor of Burlington.

Charles Y. Flanders, former Mayor of Burlington, died at his home, 7 West Union street, last Friday at 9 20 o'clock, after an illness of more than two months, from Brights disease. His wife and only daughter, Mrs. Marguerite Worrell, and a few friends were present when the end came.

Mr. Flanders has been a power in Burlington county politics for many years. In fact, he was the most potent factor in the political turmoil of South Jersey and was highly esteemed by all who knew him, irrespective of their political affiliations.

He was a prominent member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, the Masonic order and was also a member of the Trenton Club and Trenton Country Club of Trenton. He was one of the directors of the United and Globe Rubber Company of Trenton, and was as well known in the capital city as he was in his home town.

Mr. Flanders was nearly sixty years of age and was one of the most highly respected citizens of Burlington. Always prominent in civic affairs, he was perhaps the best known man in Burlington county.

Christmas Music at M. E. Church.

Last Sunday was observed as Christmas Sunday at the Bristol M. E. church. At the morning service the pastor, Rev. E. W. Rushton, preached an excellent sermon appropriate to the occasion. The musical programme under the direction of B. Frank Conner, Jr., was splendidly rendered; The following anthems were rendered: "Gloria," from Mozart's Twelfth Mass; "Brightest and Best," and "Calm on the Listening Ear of Night," by Lyons, the solo parts being sung by Howard Coombs and Frank Conner, Jr.

The evening service was in charge of the Sunday school. The choir was augmented by an orchestra of eight pieces with Miss Gertrude Lefferts presiding at the pipe organ. The following musical programme was rendered: "Christmas Bells," by the school, "Merry, Merry Christmas," by the school; "Shine, Bethlehem Star," by the junior department; solo, "The Message of Christmas," by Miss Margaret Bunting; "Songs of the Ages," by the choir; duet, "The Holy Night," Misses May Stradling and Ella Thornton; "The Promised King," by the school, duet, "Don't Tell," Arthur and Richard Phipps; "Glory to God," by the school; solo, "Lullaby," Miss Margaret Arnold; anthem, "Lead us Onward," by the choir; "Farewell Christmas," by the school.

New Jersey is actually using convicts to keep the roads in repair. The object lesson to motorcar owners who exceed the speed limit has a value of its own.

Clinical Society Met Here.

Last Friday afternoon the regular monthly meeting of the Lower Bucks County Clinical Society was held in the office of Dr. Howard Pursell on Mill street, Bristol.

An interesting paper prepared by Dr. Klenk, of Tullytown, on the "Topographical Anatomy of the Kidney, Inspection, Palpation and percussion of the Same," was read, as was also one by Dr. Carter of Eddington, on the "Diagnosis of Injuries of the Kidney, Movable Kidney, Renal Calculus, Tumors of the Kidney and the X-ray in Kidney Diseases."

Dr. Carter was elected chairman and Dr. Thomas, of Langhorne, secretary for the ensuing six months. The physicians present were Drs. William C. LeCompte, Frank Lehman, Howard Pursell, of Bristol; Morris J. Carter, of Eddington; Horace Fleckenstine, of Newportville; H. L. Thomas, of Langhorne; James M. Klenk, of Tullytown.

BRISTOL MASON'S ANNUAL BANQUET

The annual election of officers and banquet of Bristol Lodge, No. 25, F. and A. M., was held in the Masonic temple on Cedar street last Saturday evening. It was one of the most enjoyable affairs held for a long time.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Worshipful Master, William B. Worrell; Senior Warden, Philip H. Longhurst, Junior Warden, W. Albertson Haines, Secretary, William H. Watson; Treasurer, Harvey S. Rue; Representative to Grand Lodge, Charles P. Dungan; Trustees, Evan J. Groom, Benjamin W. Boutcher, Byram C. Foster, Charles E. Scott and Lemuel Vandegrift.

The banquet which consisted of oyster cocktails stewed terrapin, halibut steakes, Roman punch, tenderloin of beef and mushrooms, roast duck, etc., was served by a Philadelphia caterer.

Roy Tracy, the retiring worshipful master, acted as toastmaster. Telegrams of regret were read from Judge Ryan and Bishop Garland who intended to be present.

Excellent addresses were made by Rev. E. W. Rushton, Rev. W. T. Johnston, Charles E. Scott, Thomas Scott and Dr. J. N. Richards. Harry J. Shoemaker also spoke.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. James Mathers, of Emilie, announce the engagement of their daughter, Mabel Dinsmore, to Mr. Victor C. Sandham, of West Philadelphia.

Stricken With Paralysis.

John Lodge, of Linden street, Bristol, while working about his former residence on Otter street on Saturday morning was stricken with paralysis and was taken home in an unconscious condition. He died Monday morning. He leaves a widow and several children.

who will deliver an address at the Men's Meeting in the First Baptist church on Sunday afternoon. Subject, "Home for Dinner."

The Rev. George Adams, of Philadelphia, will make the address.

The choir, with the assistance of the Arion Glee Club will render the following selections: "Unto You a Savior is Born," "Sing, Oh Heavens," "Rejoice Oh, Greatly, Daughter of Zion." The choir will consist of thirty members.

Justices Make Tax Returns.

Justices of the peace from the lower end of the county made their returns of tax to the county commissioners at Doylestown on Monday and had their exonerations allowed and costs paid them. This was the only business done by the commissioners but it kept the board busy the greater part of the day. Among the bills paid were the following:

Noel C. Kennedy, Middletown, exonerations, $28.55; costs, $30.10.

Arthur P. Townsend, Langhorne, exonerations, $12.10; costs, $4.24.

Henry H. Vanartsdalen, Southampton, exonerations, $18.48; costs $3.

Morris Blynn, Yardley, exonerations, $51 50; costs $26 54.

Fred I. Kraft, Bristol, exonerations, $318 35; costs, $66.36.

William K. Stackhouse, Bristol township, exonerations, $112.49; costs $52.20

John H. Woolston, Falls, exonerations, $84 98; costs $30.80.

William H. Dyer, Bensalem, exonerations, $64.40; costs, $72.72.

Watson F. Paxton, Solebury, exonerations, $33.47; costs, $10.80.

Martin V. Wright, Morrisville, exonerations, $39.90; costs, $47.58.

SEATTLE HERO HERE TO VISIT MOTHER

Newton Johns, Who Rescued a Number of Lives at Seattle Dock Arrived Here on Monday.

Newton Johns, or to be correct according to baptismal record, Isaac Newton May Johns, arrived in Bristol on Monday morning at 9.16 bedecked with gold and silver mementos of his heroic deed in far off Seattle where he rescued the lives of a half-score of women and children who were plunged into the depths of Elliott Bay, by the collapse of a steamer gang plank at the Coleman dock in Seattle, on May 19.

The story of the Bristol colored youth's brave act has been told in every metropolitan newspaper in the country and has made his name famous wherever deeds of valor are appreciated.

Johns appeared at the Gazette office Monday morning shortly after he arrived in Bristol, after he had greeted his venerable mother. He bore on his breast a handsome gold medal presented by the steamship company which was engraved with a representation of Johns struggling in the water with a child in his arms. On the obverse side is the following inscription, "Isaac Newton May Johns, for heroic deeds in saving lives at the accident at a slip at Coleman's dock, at 11 a. m., May 19, 1912. Presented by the Inland Navigation Company Seattle, Washington."

Newton, is the son of Mrs. George Johns on Penn street. He has travelled extensively but of late years has resided in Seattle. He is well and favorably known in Bristol. He has several brothers here.

Citizens of Seattle made up a purse for Newton so that he could come to Bristol and visit his mother. He expects to receive a Carnegie hero medal.

Talked to Tenderloin Crowd.

The Rt. Rev. Thomas J. Garland, Bishop Suffragan of the Episcopal Diocese of Pennsylvania, formerly rector of St. Pauls church, Bristol, preached at two points in the Tenderloin, Philadelphia, on Monday evening from the tailboard of the Inasmuch Mission gospel truck. The Bishop also addressed a large crowd on the postoffice plaza, Ninth and Market streets, where he found himself in competition with the clanging of trolley gongs, the Salvation Army tambourines and the cries of the fakers. At all three places the Bishop was listened to with the closest attention.

It was the first time in the history of the diocese that a Bishop has appeared on a street corner in the Tenderloin and preached the gospel. Moreover, it was the first time in twenty-three years that Bishop Garland has engaged in any form of open-air preaching. He told his audience in front of the Galilee Mission, Vine and Darien streets, that his former open-air preaching was done in Liverpool, England.

"This is nothing unusual," the Bishop told the crowd, "I have heard of the Bishop of London preaching to crowds in the London slums at midnight."

A church in Kansas City, Kas., will have a gymnasium and swimming pool in the basement. Yes, it is a Baptist church.

NAPOLE[ON] ... IN BOR[DENTOWN]

New Owner of Historic P... it to its Former Sple[ndor]

Evidence of plans made fo[r the re]ception of the great Napoleon an[d his] protection in the event he had esc[aped] from the rock of St. Helena, have been uncovered on the estate at Bordentown, N. J., where once dwelt Joseph Bonaparte. King of Spain.

The secret underground passages a semi-circular subterranean room and evidences of a treasure vault have been traced on the estate which will be restored by its present owner

Tradition has it that there is a labyrinth under the great park, a nest of hidden refuges. When the estate was purchased last year by Harris Hammond, son of John Hays Hammond, who proposes to restore it, attention was called to the entrance to one of these passages from the Delaware river which was visible.

It was said at that time that only the restoration of the park was contemplated, but now, under the direction of Everitt Shinn, the owner proposes to bring back all of the splendors of the abode of royalty that money and human ingenuity can create.

The chateau where the King of Spain lived under the title of Count de Survilliers was burned and upon its blackened ruins an exact copy of it is to be built. The architects whom Mr. Shinn is to engage are to use as guides several old prints and drawings which were made when the structure still stood, while the style of the ruins of houses on the estate also will be of assistance in the carrying out of his ambitious scheme.

M. Shinn will leave in a few weeks for a tour in search of relics of the first Napoleon and his family with which to adorn the restored chateau He may acquire some of the relics which were in the sale of the St Elba home of the Emperor.

An All Around Aim.

The man with the St Vitus' dance and the man who stammered went out to shoot sparrows. The man who stammered had the first shot, but he failed to bring down a single bird He handed the gun to his companion, saying

"You t-t-try your l-l-luck"

With many contortions and spasmodic movements the nervous one took aim and, to the utter astonishment of both, brought down a bird The stammerer gazed at him in silence for a minute and then remarked

"N-n-n no w-wonder you k-k-killed a s-s-sparrow Y-you aimed all p-o-over the d-d-d-durned tree"—Everybody's Home's Where Love Is.

Home's not merely four square walls
Though with pictures hung and gilded
Home is where affection calls,
Filled with shrines the heart hath builded

Home' Go watch the faithful dove
Sailing neath the heaven above us
Home is where there's one to love
Home is where there's one to love us

Home's not merely roof and room,
It needs something to endear it
Home is where the heart can bloom,
Where there's some kit... lip to cheer it

What is home with none to meet,
None to welcome, none to greet us?
Home is sweet, and only sweet,
Where there's one we love to meet us

A Puzzle to Pat.

An Irishman entered a ticket office one day and inquired what the fare was to Chicago

"Ten dollars," said the clerk. "But, he added, "we are making a special rate By buying a round trip ticket you can get it for $15."

The Irishman looked puzzled "A round trip?"

"Yes," said the clerk, "a round trip to Chicago and back."

"Well," said Pat, "what do I want to come back for when I am already here?"—Everybody's Magazine.

The Better Authority.

After William Jennings Bryan had courted the beautiful Mary Baird for what he considered a sufficient length of time the commoner, then a struggling young lawyer, concluded to put the vital question to the father of the future Mrs. Bryan. William, after finally downing the lump in his throat, sought refuge in the Scriptures.

"Mr. Baird, I have been reading proverbs a good deal lately," said Mr Bryan, "and I find that Solomon says, 'Whoso findeth a wife findeth a good thing and obtaineth favor of the Lord'"

Father Baird, being somewhat of a Bible scholar himself, replied, "Yes, I believe Solomon did say that, but Paul suggests that, while he that marrieth doeth well, he that marrieth not doeth better."

Bryan, who never has been at a loss for an answer in his spectacular life quickly replied, "Solomon would be the better authority upon this point because Paul was never married, while Solomon had a number of wives"

Whereupon Father Baird capitulated —Kansas City Star.

Tom Hood's Test.

The following story is one which Tom Hood was rather fond of relating

He was once asked to contribute to a new journal, not exactly gratuitously, but at a small advance upon nothing He accepted the terms conditionally—that is to say, provided the principle could be properly carried out.

Accordingly he wrote to his butcher, baker and other tradesmen, informing them that it was necessary for the sake of cheap literature and the interest of the reading public that they should in future furnish him with their several commodities at a trifling percentage above cost price

It will be sufficient to quote the answer of the butcher:

Sir—Respecting your note cheap literater be blowed! Butchers must live as other pepel and if so be you or the readin' publick wants to have meat at prime cost you must buy your own beastesses and kill yourselves I remain, etc

...MACKIE

There were three girls in Little River whom Gideon Westcott had admired sufficiently ... remotely dream of giving up his bachelor existence Unfortunately for Gideon his fits of shyness had restrained him from nearly approaching him a delicate subject of love, and at the end of ten years he found himself thirty-five years of age, with thinning hair, an increasing timidity of manner and forlornly conscious that now he did not know which girl he liked the best. Of course this did not matter much, as he confessed to himself he would never have mustered courage to propose to the happy damsel if his choice had been made

As for the three girls, each one had admitted that she liked Gideon Westcott. He was handsome, and he was quiet in his tastes, he had a prosperous little business in the insurance line, and except for his excessive reserve of speech and manner he was popular among his townsmen The years had passed over the three heads, black, golden and red and drawn a thin veil over the girlish faces a shadow that left a perceptible change upon the three

All at once Estelle Lyon had tossed her red glory of hair in defiance of fate and married the station agent at Fair River After that when Gideon met her he was filled with a vague regret that he had not pressed his suit and perhaps married Estelle himself if she would have had him He saw her in the lustre of motherhood and as the happy wife of the genial agent, and he blamed himself for being a weak fool

There were only two left then—Anne Prosser and Anne Barnes As if following the example of her rival in Gideon's affections, shortly after Estelle was married to the station agent Anne Prosser became engaged to a merchant in a neighboring city

After Anne's marriage Gideon discovered that of all the three girls he had liked Anne Prosser was the one whom he did love and ardently desire ... The others were mere ... Anne was real She was like the wire from the crown ... black head to the soles ... feet and now it was, un... too late to do anything ... matter for Anne was married

As for Anne Barnes, who assisted in the village library Gideon scarcely ever thought nowadays He met her occasionally as they went their ways to and fro about the streets but beyond a careless nod of her pretty

head or his stiff greeting in return they might as well never have known each other

Then one March morning there came the news that Anne Prosser Larned was a widow Gideon read the news with ... guilty throb of joy Would he lose his chance this time? Not on his life—so Gideon Westcott assured himself

Months went by Mrs Larned came back to Little River by no means an inconsolable widow If Gideon had stopped to think he might have told himself that he knew there was a hard look in her black eyes and that the lines of her thin face were not only ... eradicated by the artificial color ... she had learned to apply He took for granted that he was in love with Mrs Larned and he was quite happy when she accepted his attentions

Now, Gideon's housekeeper Ellen Blair, was more deeply interested in his love affairs than he was himself If such a situation can be understood The marriage of her employer meant the exodus of Ellen from her comfortable situation. It meant the seeking of another home, the making of new ties, the endeavor to please a new exacting man than Mr Westcott. Miss Blair thought all these matters over in the ten years that passed after Gideon's mother had died, and she had noted with great satisfaction the fact that the young man's courage in court ... was as all compared with his embarrassment and reserve

Ellen Blair once said across the table, "I declare to man I'm sorry for the feller that asks a Little River girl to marry him—if she don't want him, why, she'll just up and tell every time she give So-and so the mitten!" But she added more doubts to Gideon's unsettled frame of mind, and it must be acknowledged that it might have been a factor in the problem of Mrs Larned's matrimonial intentions

Gideon Westcott hated publicity of any sort. He shrank from it.

One morning in late winter Gideon came down to breakfast with his mind fully made up to ask Anne Larned to marry him—or to marry Anne Larned as the way he put it to himself. The light before he had picked up one of his housekeeper's paper covered novels ... had soon had become absorbed in the story. "Carried by Storm; or, The Way to Win a Woman," had been the title and when he had finished the last chapter Gideon was infused with new courage and a daring idea had been suggested to him.

"Four buckwheats are getting cold," remarked Ellen Blair as Gideon sat down. "I heard you rustlin' around ... for the last hour, and I got ... ready, bein' you're particular about havin' your breakfast on time." ... expect the chickens will like ... said Gideon pleasantly.

... sniffed scornfully and removed the plate of soggy cakes from ... Presently Gideon heard the ... griddle and ... on the hot griddle and ... about the kitchen, ... in anticipation of the time ... would be replaced by some... Larned!

... Prosser's goin' to get ... has only dead a ... the next time she ... the instant at Gid...

That Gould, at Lake ... versatile ... housekeeper

"Carried by Storm or The Way to Win a Woman" had to Gideon's favorable reply to his ... marriage certificate and proceeded to ... the adored maiden's name Then he approached her waved ... in her astonished face and ... said say "Jack Robinson ... the name of any other preferred suitor she found herself married to the ... petuous youth and immediately ... fessed that she had ... this very same thing. She ... a very careful toilet, and perhaps it was the sight of his new spring suit of light gray that inspired Ellen Blair remarks about Anne Larned Gideon was beginning to feel that Larned's gossip was in a manner ... of resources She wanted to hold her job

The town clerk at Brecktown recorded Gideon's application for ... certificate with a covert smile ... reached for a blank and ... poised above it.

"Name? he asked briefly

Gideon told him that as well as his age and all the other necessary details that precede one's entrance into the state of matrimony Then he was filled with panic at the next question

"Lady's name? demanded the clerk.

Gideon grasped and ... Anne's name conscious that he was taking an unwarranted liberty

What? repeated the man with a black look at the applicant

'Anne Larned' replied Gideon in an embarrassed whisper

The clerk's face ... Barnes' He scratched it down ... to Gideon's cold horror ... to know the young lady myself and she's pretty as a picture Spinster ... course he mused writing rapidly "Age?

I think you're mistaken ... Gideon desperately but the town clerk seemed to be intimately acquainted with Anne Barnes for he knew her ... and even the names of her parents and that was more than Gideon knew himself so he waved in a spirit of ... the prospective bride's room and dipped his pen in and out of the ink

There he said blotting the document and scanning it carefully You see, I used to go to school with Anne Barnes and she used to visit my sister so we are pretty well acquainted When is it going to be

"That hasn't been decided ' said Gideon gloomily and without another word he paid his fee and strode from the place The congratulations of the amiable clerk rang unheeded on his ears His head buzzed with the sound of Anne Barnes' name He who desired to marry Anne Larned found himself the possessor of a paper which with the consent of Miss Barnes would entitle him to call upon the pleasant services of the Rev Mr Beems at a very early date

What would Anne Larned say if she knew it? What would Anne Barnes say?

Gideon the bashful one returned to Little River in an agony of embarrassment On ... home his first impulse was to destroy ... license but he held his hand He ... think a way out of this unfortunate entanglement Suppose the garrulous town clerk should meet Anne Barnes and congratulate her—what complications would arise! What unpleasantness for Anne Barnes!

He lingered in his room thinking about Anne Barnes He recollected the time when he had thought her the prettiest, the sweetest and the most lovable of the girls he liked What had changed him? With a sense of distaste he suddenly recollected that his housekeeper had hinted that Anne Barnes was engaged to the Baptist minister Imbued with this idea Gideon had avoided Anne Barnes and conferred his attentions upon Anne Prosser or Estelle Lyon—he couldn't remember which on

It was strange that he could always detach Anne Barnes from the other two girls and remember little incidents about her—but he was always confusing his reminiscences of Estelle Lyon with Anne Prosser. He wondered now if there was not something significant in that fact For the first time he felt that there was something tangible in his quest for a wife Here was Anne Barnes whom he had almost asked to marry him—he had even begun to tell her how much he loved her and she had said 'Don't!' and turned her golden head away It was after that that he had heard about the Baptist minister, who after all had married somebody else and moved away

"ANNE," HE SAID APPEALINGLY, "ANNE?"

He knew now that Anne Barnes always impressed him for he could have told you she was wearing a blue cloak this winter and a blue velvet toque that mingled with the gold of her hair and yet he scarcely glanced at her in passing each day—and she? How she must scorn him!

Gideon forgot all about Anne Prosser Larned and went down to dinner with a sense of pleasant intimacy with Anne Barnes growing upon him The marriage license crackled in his breast pocket every time he moved his arm As he entered the dining room he stumbled over the copy of "Carried by Storm, or The Way to Win a Woman' He picked up the book and laid it on the table with a half smile at its suggestion

An hour later he entered the public library and was relieved to find Anne Barnes all alone behind the desk The flush in her cheeks drew deeper as he approached the window and looked

... story of the arrival of ... Trouville on a May ... the thirties is a cheerful ... laughing loudly he crossed ... ques carried on the shoulders ... sturdy Norman peasant and en... the primitive little inn of those ... days with all the clatter and excitement which usually distinguished his movements

La Mere Oserale, the good woman who kept it told him flatly that she received none but painters The Trouville of those days was a tiny fishing village which only a few artists had discovered Dumas promptly alleged that he was a "painter in words" and even offered to paint—or write—her signboard, which the other clients—ungrateful dogs—had promised but neglected to do This handsome though confusing evidence of good faith mollified the good innkeeper, and she consented to receive Dumas at the amazing price of 2 francs a day, tout compris Trouville was indeed then what the French term un petit trou pas cher —"a little hole not dear"

When the painters, friends whom Dumas had come to see in their remote corner, returned toward evening from the green woods and glades along the little river's valley they found the amiable giant filling the inn with his cries and laughter and brandishing a great spoon in the preparation of an evening meal which promised to run his bill for extras into figures hitherto unknown in Trouville. —Harper's Magazine

COLORED RAIN AND SNOW.

And In Volcanic Regions Gray Hail Is Relatively Common

In certain parts of Spain during last winter red and black snow fell The phenomenon is explained as being due to the presence in the atmosphere in unusual quantities of certain mineral salts History mentions a day when 'the heavens rained blood' In the middle ages such an occurrence was accepted as predicting war or famine, or at any rate, shedding of blood

The presence of a micro organism seems always to accompany red rain In volcanic regions gray hail is relatively common In Sicily this has been observed very often, because the higher layers of the atmosphere are filled with ashes from Mount Etna During the past century there have been black rains in England twice, and on both occasions the color was due to the presence of micro-organisms

A curious fall of red snow is observed sometimes in the Alps in spring but black snow is a rarity. Last spring in the mountains that surround the valley of Emmen snow of a dirty grayish black has been noticed. It formed a crust of some centimeters in thickness and extended over the white snow which had fallen on previous days This strange occurrence has not been satisfactorily explained, but it is supposed that the volcanic ashes from Etna were carried by the winds and precipitated by the dampness of the air.—Harper's Weekly

A Capful of Wind.

The origin of the phrase "a capful of wind" can be traced to a Norse king, Eric VI., who died in 907 A D He was credited with the useful power of directing the wind to blow where he wished by the simple method of turning his cap to that point of the compass His powers were much appreciated and trusted and resulted in his being known as 'windy cap' There is no evidence as to whether he could regulate the force of the wind as well as the direction Presumably he could, or his faithful believers would not have been so many A "bag ful of wind is another common expression and indicates something like a gale This has been traced down to the classical legend of Aeolus and his captive winds confined in bags

Roman Masons' Tools.

The excavations at Pompeii and Herculaneum have unearthed masons tools much resembling those in use to day and demonstrated the freer use of large tiles the employment of iron to tie together brick and stone work and the use of a kind of concrete of which lime was the binding medium and finely broken brick a favorite material The dome of the Pantheon built in the first century of the Christian era still testifies to the enduring nature of the concrete superstructure albeit bound with lime and not with cement—National Magazine

Artistic Ability.

"By the Sea is a very pretty title for your picture,' said the interested onlooker But the sea is too green and the waves are too fluffy"

Dining Room Cranks.

He's all right except for coffee and bread He must have his coffee boiling hot, and he always puts a lump of ice in it. He has always paid for special hot bread He gets a small loaf, cuts it in two, removes all the crumb part from one half and eats the crust The other half he leaves untouched I have a regular who puts salt and pepper on his grapefruit, and"— "He could be talking yet," said the man who related the story, "if I hadn't told him that I was a crank on being served quickly."—New York Tribune

Up Against the Judge.

He was a Scottish advocate, and in his pleading he had several times pronounced the word "enow" for "enough."

"Mr. ——," the judge remarked at length, "in England we sound the 'ough' as 'uff'—'enuff,' not 'enow.'"

"Verra weel, ma lord," continued the self possessed pleader, "of this we have said enuff, and I come, ma lord, to the subdivision of the land in dispute. It was apportioned, ma lord, into what in England would be called plufflands—a plufflands being as much land as a pluffman can pluff in one day, and pluffmen"—

But his lordship could not withstand the ready repartee and burst into a laugh, saying:

"Pray proceed, Mr —— We know 'enow' of the Scottish language to understand your arguments." — London Tit-Bits.

THE ANCIENT TRAVELER.

Outfit He Was Advised to Carry in the Eighteenth Century

A small traveler's guide dated 1780, contains a good deal of serious advice as to the luggage which should be carried

"Take," says the book 'two suits of clothes, one coffee colored and one blue, a chest flannel, a pair of leather breeches, a sleeping suit (three pairs of stockings two pairs of gloves two wigs one hair bag (?), two caps two hats, two pairs of shoes one pair of slippers six undershirts four dozen shirts, six neckties six collars six handkerchiefs four pairs of cuffs three cravats two pairs of cotton hose and two pairs of socks

But this is not all as is shown by the following items 'Take a Bible a book of sermons a Traveler's Guide two albums, a diary, a quire of white paper, quills and ink an almanac a mirror, a silver watch a silver snuff box, a silver spoon, a pair of silver shoe buckles a silver tie pin three silver studs a gold seal ring a knife and fork with silver handles a sewing case, an opera glass a compass a wax light and a tinder box a toothbrush a silver toothpick a sword a silver mounted cane a padlock with which to fasten your door at night inside a clothes brush a box of medicine '—Pall Mall Gazette

Marking a Book.

There's a dear old chap in this town—too gentle and too modest to put his name or profession into print—who administered a rebuke worth remembering to a young friend The young man showed him a book in which certain passages were marked with pencil The older man asked if he might look the book

"I—I can't lend it," said the other "I borrowed it myself'

"Ah! And who marked these passages?"

"I did"

"The owner might erase them ... know Always use ink and so ... your wisdom along"—Cleveland Plain Dealer

Properly Boiled Meat.

To boil meat so as to retain the juices and soluble salts and yet cook it sufficiently it should be plunged into boiling water and boiled rapidly for about ten minutes After this the cooking the kettle must be pushed over to the back of the fire where its contents will simmer gently This tends to coagulate the outer rind of the meat so that the juices cannot escape If meat is treated in this manner the inside will be found juicy and tender but if the meat is allowed to boil it will be found hard and chippy in goodness having all boiled out of it

The Bell's Responsibilities

This Company recognizes its obligation to the Public and makes its chief endeavor the efficient discharge of every duty.

The rendering of a comprehensive local and long distance telephone service is a task made possible only when

Our construction, equipment and operation conform to the most modern standard:

Our employees are as courteous as they are competent, and extend to everyone the same considerate treatment,

And our employees' welfare is insured through recognition of faithfulness and ability at least to the extent of proper wages.

It is the aim of the Company to furnish standard telephone service—at FAIR RATES, rates which

Will meet the necessary operating expenses;

Will provide adequate reserves for replacing worn out and obsolete plant,

Will allow a reasonable return on the investment.

The Company may then develop a telephone system which will give everyone the highest degree of satisfaction.

These are the responsibilities and obligations to which we subscribe, feeling that the people of this locality will co-operate with us at all times in our efforts to furnish the efficient and universal Bell Service.
